REVIEW OF TRADE.

Conditions are Not Satisfactory Because of Bad Weather.

New York, June 15.—R. G. Dunn & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Despite some improvement, weather conditions have continued adverse for retail trade at most points, and business is only stimulated by bargain sales. Prospects for fall distribution are brighter because of the better crop reports, and manufacturers receive liberal orders for next season. Current conditions, however, are not satisfactory, and mercantile collections are below normal, except in sections where country storekeepers have been enabled to make prompt settlements.

Record-breaking production of pig iron without causing accumulation is ample evidence of unprecedented activity in the steel industry. Implement makers buy bars regardless of reports that crops are smaller, and the congestion at pipe and sheet mills is not relieved. New business in structural shapes comes forward steadily.

Despite the activity of blast furnaces, output of coke has increased so much faster that pressure to unload cars brought lower prices.

There is a certain restaurant in town of quite ambitious pretensions, but not always successful realizations. In fact, it may be described as French on a Hibernian footing. Two people who dined there the other evening were finishing their dessert when the waiter approached. With napkin in one hand and tray poised on the other, he inquired in his best Gaelic accents:

"And will yez both have dimmy-tassys?"

Not Worth the Effort.

"Look out!" exclaimed the man who had seen another bravely rescued from the water. "Handle that fellow carefully or he might revive."

"Brute!" ejaculated the rescuers. "Brute, nothing," rejoined the first speaker; "I saw him rocking the boat."

YIELDING TO YEARS.

Architectural Marvels of Middle Ages Showing Signs of Decay.

Almost every day, now, the foreign dispatches report the partial fall or the dangerous weakening of one of the famous buildings of Europe. Today it is the Vatican that is beginning to crumble, yesterday it was the Alhambra, and a dozen such announcements can be remembered before one gets back even to the recent day when the great tower in Venice came down with a crash which resounded throughout the whole civilized world because all of that world knew about the tower.

There is really some excuse for fearing that the architectural marvels of the middle ages are nearing the limit of their endurance, and that, unless they are subjected to repairs and restorations which not many of them are likely to receive, the time will soon come when people will have to do without these visible reminders of the part of the past which forms so large a part of our history and literature. This will be a loss, indeed, and yet the restorer and the repairer are almost as much to be feared as ruthless time, and one does not call them in too eagerly, even when somebody else must pay their bills.—N. Y. Times.

AGAINST THE MIDDLE.

Why Bill Cut Out Liver and Bacon When His Luck Turned.

When Bill, the ranchman, came from Denver to New York to play the races he put up at one of the most expensive hotels in the city and took one of the most expensive rooms. Then he went broke. The proprietor of the hotel and the clerk held a private consultation.

"We will let him stay here," they decided, "but from now on we will feed him liver and bacon until he pays his bill. Nothing does he get in this house from now on but liver and bacon."

They fed Bill liver and bacon for breakfast, dinner and supper for about three weeks, then his luck turned. He forthwith walked out to a strange cafe to get something to eat. He looked over the bill of fare.

"What's this in the middle?" he asked. "Liver and bacon?"

"Yes, sir," the waiter answered. "Give me everything on the bill of fare both ways from liver and bacon," ordered Bill.

Pious Hope.

Forty years ago the wickedest person in Allen county, Ohio, was Old Man Ellison, a well-to-do farmer. Not until he approached three-score and ten did he mellow down, and then but a little. Once when attending a raling he soliloquized thus on his own decadence:

"The ole man's been putty tuff, boys. He's rashed with some mighty hard cases, the ole man has. But it's about over. The ole devil is after him hard an' fast, the ole devil is, an' by 'n' by he'll get him. But he won't keep him long, the ole devil won't. By 'n' by he'll be glad to fetch the ole man back."

"Well," spoke up Bill Pettit, his fiercest foe, "all I hope is when he does he'll forget where he found you."

ENOUGH FOR TWO LOADS.

Senator Hale's Story Gives Neat Rebuke to Congressman.

Senator Hale had been inveighing at a dinner against long speeches. "But, senator," said a congressman, "you can't accuse me of ever having made too long a speech, can you?"

Senator Hale smiled. "Perhaps not," he said; "and again, but did you ever hear about the temperance lecturer?"

"Well, you must know that there was a temperance lecturer in Maine who came to Ellsworth and lectured. He hit out pretty hard from the shoulder at these so-called moderate drinkers and at the end of his remarks an Ellsworth man took him aside and said in an aggrieved tone:

"Look here, Jim; I am a moderate drinker, as all the town knows, and to many people it is going to seem as if a good part of your lecture was pointed at me. What did you want to do it for, Jim? You never saw me with more on board than I could carry."

"What's that?" said the temperance lecturer.

"You never saw me with a bigger load than I could carry, did you?"

"The lecturer frowned. "Well, no," he said, slowly, "but I have seen you when I thought you'd have done better to go twice for it."

MORGAN AND THE STUTTERER.

Former Relaxed at the Clever Retort of the Latter.

A young reporter on the New York Sun, who stuttered fearfully, was sent one day to try to get a statement from Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan.

"Who and what are you?" demanded Mr. Morgan.

In moments of surprise or nervous excitement the reporter's stammering always became acute, so he stood with jaws locked, vainly trying to speak.

Mr. Morgan began to fume, and finally he snarled:

"What in the devil are you?"

The reporter's sense of humor did not share the clogging up of his speech, and, after much facial contortion, he managed to gurgle out:

"I-I-I—aaaaan an elocutionist."

Mr. Morgan saw the joke, he grimly relaxed and when the reporter's speech-consciousness returned he got the statement.—Saturday Evening Post.

Impetuosity.

In spite of generations of reckless combative Irish gentlemen, it is odd that we have still to go to American literature for the classical instances of impetuosity with firearms. This is a reproach to Irish authors, which should touch them closely. Irish gentlemen were killing and wounding each other on sight almost for centuries before America was heard of, and yet it was left for Bret Harte and Mark Twain and John Hay to fix in the far west the type of fire-eater who carried his honor in his belt.—T. P.'s Weekly.

Modern Artificiality.

We certainly should be downcast at the wholesale artificiality of the age. Most of the people one knows are in reality entirely different from what they seek to appear. To take anybody seriously is well-nigh a heinous offense, and it seems to be regarded as a much greater triumph to produce an imitation that "deifies detection" than an enduring work of art. The classes are compounded of shame; the middle classes delight in them.—World.

A Calumny on Anglers.

"We fishermen," said Havelock Morton, California's famous fly-caster, "are continually being accused of intemperance. The accusation is false. No intemperate man could ever cast a fly. Yet yesterday a friend of mine had the effrontery to say to me:

"You fishermen! You fishermen!"

"What's the matter now? I asked scornfully.

"With a chuckle he declared that, out walking in the country, he had met an angler beside a brook and had said to the man:

"How can you tell the good places from the bad when you come to a stream?"

"By the bottles," the man answered. "Wherever the most empty bottles are scattered is the best place."

LARUE NEWS

LaRue, June 14.—A very pleasant surprise was celebrated at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Dutton, two miles south of Agosta, last Sunday in honor of Mrs. Dutton's fifty-second birthday anniversary. About fifty relatives and friends were present to assist in making the occasion one that will long be remembered by all present. A sumptuous dinner was served at high noon and the balance of the day was spent with music and social chat.

The local K. of P. lodge No. 214, will hold their regular annual memorial services in the M. E. church Sunday, June 16, 1907, at 2 o'clock sun time. Rev. Pinkerton of Kenton, Ohio, will deliver the address and the Aetorian Quartet of Marion will furnish the music.

Mrs. Lizzie Stone returned to this place Saturday evening after a ten days' visit with her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Whiteside at Columbus, Mrs. Whiteside and two children, little Misses Bertha and Gladys, accompanied her home for a few days' visit.

Miss Lulu Schotte went to Richmond Friday morning to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hedges, near that village for a couple of weeks. Mrs. T. J. Knapp accompanied her as far as Marion, returning the same evening.

This village, always in advance of the neighboring towns, has a patrol wagon, brand new and of unique design. The conveyance has four wheels.

Day lodge No. 328, I. O. O. F., will hold their annual memorial services in the Free Baptist church next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock sun time.

Mrs. May C. Reynolds returned to this village Saturday evening from Postoria and Monday evening she started for Boston from which city on June 14th, she will embark on the steamship Bohemian of the Liverpool Line of ocean boats, for Liverpool, England.

Joseph Carey and Miss May Spale of Marion, were guests at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carey, on Union street, Sunday.

Miss Catha Bell went to Marion Wednesday morning where she will visit her brother, Erin, and family during the remainder of the week.

Mrs. C. L. Sharpe spent Monday evening and Tuesday visiting with relatives in Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. DeLauder of Marion visited at the home of Mrs. Samuel Bader of Marion were guests at the Will Clark home on East Market street from Friday until Monday.

Master Keith and Clair Ridgway are visiting at the home of their uncle, Hon. G. E. Mouser in Marion, at present.

Walter Burroughs, who is employed in Marion spent Saturday and Sunday in the vicinity of LaRue the guest of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Day D. Clifton was a visitor in Marion Wednesday.

Mrs. L. G. Copeland was the guest of friends in Marion, Tuesday.

Dance tonight in Schwinger's hall.

PLAYS & PLAYERS

Next week's bill at the Marion Family theatre will be entirely different from the one offered during the present week. It will be headed by Atlantis and Mack, comedy and novelty globe artists. Attention is called to Mr. Mack's correct imitation of a steam callopie without the aid of any mechanical device.

The two Norrises are clever performers and will present a comedy sketch that is artistic as well as entertaining.

Nick S. Conway will take about twelve minutes of your time with his witty stories and up-to-date songs. Conway was with "With a fight for Millions" company in 1901-1902 and 1903; with John and Emma Rays company "Down the Pike" 1904 and 1905 and Andrew Mack's company in 1905 and 1906.

Marie Dockman will display some of her strength by swinging a chair with her teeth and other feats seemingly impossible for a lady.

Another new film of our own will be "A Tramp's Dream" "Children and Earthquakes." The illustrated orchestra will while away the idle moments before the show begins with appropriate selections.

Miss T. L. Barringer of 125 Olney Avenue with number 177, drew the beautiful set of dishes at the Thursday matinee.
